Urban Migration Is a Positive Development

In recent years, there has been a noticeable increase in people moving from rural areas to cities ^{around the world} (in many parts of the world). Some believe that this trend leads to serious urban problems, such as overcrowding, traffic congestion, and increased pressure on housing and public services, while others consider it ^{beneficial for both individual and} an important step for both individual and urban development. In my opinion, urban migration is a ~~positive~~ development.

Firstly, cities ^{sehr gut!} provide better opportunities for education and employment.

This is important because access to high-quality education enables individuals to acquire specialized knowledge and practical skills, which are essential for securing stable and well-paid jobs. In rural areas, schools may lack resources and advanced programs, and job opportunities are often limited to agriculture or low-skilled work. For example, a student who moves to a city can attend a well-equipped university and later enter a professional field. As a result, urban migration allows people to improve their qualifications and gain access to better career opportunities, making it a positive form of (development).

 Secondly, cities offer more advanced infrastructure and essential services, which make people's daily lives more convenient, efficient, and secure. These include reliable public transportation, modern healthcare systems, and widely available delivery, and communication services. For instance, efficient transport networks reduce travel time to workplaces and hospitals, while access to quality healthcare ensures timely treatment and better health outcomes. In addition, services such as online shopping and food delivery save time and effort in daily routines. Therefore, these practical improvements significantly enhance living conditions, further supporting the view that urban migration is beneficial.

In conclusion, urban migration brings clear advantages by providing better access to education, employment, and modern services that improve everyday life. For these reasons, it should be regarded as a positive development.

Title

Excellent!!

Introduction

In many years, there has been a noticeable increase in people moving from rural areas to cities in many parts of the world.

“在世界各地” → 最常见的说法:

① around the world

② all over the world

in many parts of the world 语法没错 BUT 更像是中文直译 而且很长+啰嗦 :(

While others consider it an important step for both individual and urban development.

① “an important step for both individual and urban development” → 中式思维

② “important” 范围太大了/太空洞了

③ beneficial = 带来好处 / 正面影响 (虽然不是很具体, 在 introduction 不需要很详细, 但是这个词已经告知读者: 影响是正面的+结果是好的)

In many years, there has been a noticeable increase in people moving from rural areas to cities around the world.

While others consider it beneficial for both individual and urban development.

Body Paragraph 1

As a result, urban migration allows people to improve their qualifications and gain access to better career opportunities, making it a positive form of development.

Forrest

As a result, urban migration allows people to improve their qualifications and access better career opportunities, making it a positive form of development.

修改之后动词结构更对称（但原句没语法问题）：

... allows people to improve xxx and access xxx

Body Paragraph 2

Secondly, cities offer more advanced infrastructure and essential services, which make people's daily lives more convenient, efficient, and secure.

Secondly, cities offer more advanced infrastructure and essential services, ~~which make people's daily lives more convenient, efficient, and secure.~~

①论点建议简洁明了。后半句属于“结果/影响”，可以留到“分析”之后引出

②论点说了结果/影响，结尾可能又会重复一遍，读起来很冗长。

These include reliable public transportation, modern healthcare systems, and widely available delivery and communication services.

这里本来有笔记，但是老师删掉了。

Forrest 重写的时候好好发挥~

重写≠重新整理+抄写

①论点接着的这句话，不是对论点的分析，而只是在!!列举!!

是对“infrastructure and services”的列举

②分析真正要做到的是：这些东西为什么让城市更好（如何起作用）？

transport → 为什么重要

healthcare → 带来什么影响

delivery → 改变了什么

③Forrest 要做的是：

↓ 城市里有什么

↓ 这些东西有什么作用

↓ 这些作用为什么重要？

↓ 它们如何证明“城市生活更有优势”这个论点？

For instance + In addition 这部分内容：

这里本来有笔记，但是老师删掉了。

Forrest 重写的时候好好发挥～

重写≠重新整理+抄写

Transport、healthcare、delivery → 都被提到了，但每个都只点了一下

具体发生了什么改变，对人的生活有什么真实影响 → 不够有说服力

Conclusion

Excellent!!

New Writing Task (Text C) - In-class Practising

Text C: The time traveller

The blue and red streaks caused by extreme time movement ceased their insane dancing and Q found herself on firm footing. It was like being tossed from a white-knuckle thrill ride. She breathed in the new atmosphere. An earthy smell promptly smacked her nostrils, immeasurably different from the safely sanitised air of her own century. She swallowed back her shock at the new heady aroma and reminded herself that she had been warned about this. 'It will smell very different at first, but remember the mission and how much we need this.' The dark trees enveloped her like a suffocating blanket, but, Q reflected, they also afforded her concealment for the moment.

As the nausea subsided, Q reminded herself why she had been selected on this, the first ever mission of its type. She had not been the strongest in her team, but she had excelled in the 'focus' category (mustn't be distracted by anything outside the immediate mission) and in the ability to withstand the extreme discomfort that would inevitably accompany time travel from 3030 to 2030. During training, the simulators saw everyone but Q crumpled on the floor in varying stages of dizziness, exhaustion and panic. She alone had remained standing, wiping back a few tears but standing. 'We hope to improve the experience, but for now only Q can withstand the mission,' the Commander had told them.

Only one human could travel anyway. At this point, it was only considered safe to send one person at a time through a 1000-year movement. She had limited opportunity too. Q knew that in 30 minutes she would be sucked back into the vortex of blue and red lights and whisked back to her own time zone.

She hastily removed her polycarbonate armour suit and her helmet, then shook the clothing underneath so it fell into place as a twenty-first-century outfit. She would have to leave her travelling kit here and allow five minutes at the end of her mission to change back. This was inconvenient and risky, thought Q. She did her best to conceal the items under some dark foliage.

A sudden gush of panic flooded her mind, making her check her pocket. Relief radiated warmly as her eager hands folded round the small wads of paper. This was what people in this century called 'money', and she would need it.

Her watch commanded her to progress forward and, yes, she could see her destination. 'Marvel's tree seeds and compost' a golden sign read. Q walked towards it, looking neither left nor right at the inquisitive humans that were now appearing singly and in groups around her. No, she wouldn't be distracted by their strange voices and their incredibly small stature.

Stooping in the low doorway so as not to hit her head, Q entered the store. She kept looking forwards, as instructed, to where the storekeeper stood behind a long counter.

'I want 100 each of the following tree seed packets: maple, fir and eucalyptus. I want 25 kg of soil.' Her memorised words did not falter, and she remembered to intone them with painstaking slowness. The mouse-like storekeeper studied her timidly, small eyes wide and alert, and the tight clusters of people in the store stopped their conversations, their mouths dropping. Just like small, stunned animals, thought Q, but she'd been told to expect this. The storekeeper scurried off in pursuit of her request.

Q sighed at the heaviness of the sack of soil as she dragged it away. Fortunately, there was enough here for the experts back home to analyse and replicate. She arrived at the trees again, quickly put on her travelling suit and waited for the vortex.

'Well done, Q. You have accomplished your mission,' were the next words she heard – from the Commander. 'The world will have trees again, which we must care for and value this time round.'

Reread Text C, The time traveller, in the insert and then answer Question 3 on this question paper.

Question 3

You are Q. After your mission you are asked to give a speech about it to people from your century who are interested in time travel.

In your speech you should:

- explain what the mission involved and how you felt about it
- describe what worked well and what was a challenge
- suggest how further missions could be improved.

Write the words of the speech.

Base your speech on what you have read in Text C, but be careful to use your own words. Address each of the three bullets.

Write about 250 to 350 words.

Up to 15 marks are available for the content of your answer and up to 10 marks for the quality of your writing.

Questions for Forrest:

Who are “you”? → Q

Who are you writing/speaking to? → People from your/Q’s century

用第几人称? → 第一人称 (I / my / we)

! TRY TO USE YOUR OWN WORDS !

Speech:

开头 (address audience)

① “Ladies and gentlemen,” / “Hello everyone”/ “Today I want to share...”

② 互动感 → “You may wonder...”

结尾

① 呼应任务意义 (trees / future) → 呼吁、建议等等

4 Paragraph

Paragraph 1: 开头 + 引入任务

Rewrite Body Paragraph 2 (Moving to Cities)

思路:

Point: Secondly, cities offer more advanced infrastructure and essential services.

Analysis/Expatiation: Why and how cities offer these?

Example: Listing is doable, but remember to choose one and develop it with details.

*reliable transportation: shared bikes/scooters → saving time when people walk from home/office to subway/bus station...

*online shopping: when people realize that they need some ingredients but they forget to get from the market, they can order online...

*many other scenarios

Point (ending): ...
